A GOSPEL MISSION IN JERSEY CITY—THE WORK IN MONTCLAIR.

Several prominent women have organized the Jersey City Gospel Mission and Benevolent Aid Association with headquarters at No. 522 Henderson-st. The lower floor of the building has been fitted up with seats and a platform for the purpose of holding religious services, and the upper rooms have been provided with cots and will be used as a free lodging-house. The objects of the mission are to teach the vast numbers who never attend any place of worship—who are fast growing up to fill the already over-crowded prisons and reformatories; to clothe, shelter, and provide employment for the truty penitent, and to establish a reading and coffeeroom. The mission is expected to be sustained by voluntary contributions. There will be an employment bureau, where persons desirous of hiring help can do so. The mission was formally opened on Thursday night with appropriate exercises. An interesting address was delivered by President Gibbs, of the Manhattan Temperance Association of New-York. Several of the directors also delivered addresses. The directors for 1884 are: Mrs. J. Stout, Mrs. A. J. Miller, Mrs. W. H. Woodward, Mrs. L. M. Corwin, Miss A. Dedd, Mrs. W. W. Jones, Mrs. C. Wells, Mrs. Abbie Walling, Mrs. W. Gustafson, Mrs. E. Willis, Mrs. M. Parker, Mrs. J. ennie Messler, Mrs. J. Riddell, Mrs. H. M. Denning, Mrs. Jackson, Dr. J. W. Cosad, Messrs. M. H. Woodward, M. D. Hancox, Richard Davies, J. O. Altemus, M. B. Crosby, W. J. Clough, John Gustafson.

In Montclair, N. J., there is not so wide a field for temperance work as in the neighboring towns. The floure selling there is carried on quietly, and there are few of those flagrant abuses which have elsewhere furnished a motive for temperance reform. The movement now in progress has, however, developed a sentiment of strength against the liquor-dealers; but it has not had an immediate effect upon their business. COLLECTOR MCMAHON A DEFAULTER.

A DEFICIT OF OVER $30,000 IN HIS ACCOUNTS. The fact that John McMahon, Hoboken's missing collector, is a defaulter was established beyond my density yesterday. William E. Sackett, the expert accountant, reported to Mayor Timken and the investigating committee about 3p. m. that he had discovered a dedictioney of $32,798.52 in the accounts of the chrient fiscal year. This amount is the difference between the taxes collected by McMahon since last November and his payments to the city treasurer during the same period. The expert found that McMahon made a practice of withholding occasionally from $5,000 to $10,000 of his collections, although the law required him to turn all his receipts over to the treasurer within twenty-four hours. The emberzhenent of the funds was not difficult under the loose limancial system which the collector was permitted to establish. He started the practice of depositing them in the bank to his own credit, and miking his returns to the treasurer by his personal check. Another proof of the floose business methods which prevailed in the office was the discovery yesteriay by the policeman in charge of the office of $343 in cash and checks for $1.086 91, which had been thrown carelessly in a drawer among some loose papers. The Mayor took charge of the money and checks.

Immediately upon receiving the report of the expert Mr. Timken called a special meeting of the Council, which was held in the evening. A communication was received from the Mayor announcing that McMahon was a defaulter. The Mayor also submitted the expert's report, showing the anomalous of the deficiency already discovered, and expressed his fears that the defalcation would reach a nanch larger sum. He felt assured, he said, that McMahon had been appropriating the city's funds to his own use ever since the beginning of his term, and he urged the adoption of a resolution to instruct the expert to begin proceedings for the recovery of the deficiency already discovered, and expressed his fears that the defalcation would reach a n DIFFICIT OF OVER $30,000 IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

Some benevolent ladies and gentlemen of Flushing, L. L. conceived the plan of establishing a hospital and dispensary for patients without means. Every effort was made to excite public interest, and about $5,000 was secured. But a large Every effort was made to excite public in-terest, and about $3,000 was secared. But a diffi-culty arcse. Allopathists were sure that all the patients would the if Dr. Allen had anything to do patients would die if Dr. Alien had stything to do with their treatment, and hommonathists protested that the scheme was get up for the benein of Dr. Hicks. Dr. Goodrich's friends thought that an attempt was being made to prevent his connection with the medical board, and Dr. Maynard's friends persisted in advancing the theory that no one but a coroner was competent to prescribe.

The doctors in vain tried to establish harmony among their fair friends, and a new difficulty arose. This was a charity afiair, it was said, and medicine without religion was like works without faith. The Episcopalians thought it necessary to urge the services of the Rey. Dr. Smith; the Congregationalists, on the other hand, were sure that Mr. French ought to be the man, while the Methodists looked with alarm at the crowding out of the Rey. Dr. Laskw.

Finally a board of incorporators was arranged, so as to bring in all the preachers and all the doctors. They have held several meetings, but the troublons sea of discontent will not be calmed. It is feared that the plan will have to be abandoned and the money devoted to charities less susceptible of misunderstandings.

A BOY DESERTED IN JERSEY CITY.

A woman walked along Green-st., Jersey City, yesterday leading by the hand a well-dressed little boy about five years old. When they reached Hohmeier's bakery, near Montgomery-st., the woman gave the boy five cents and sent inm into the store to buy some cakes. When he returned the woman had disappeared Mrs. Hohmeier took care of the boy, thinking the woman would return for him, but she did not. At 6 o'clock the little fellow was sent to Police Headquarters. On the inside of his cloak was pinned a scrap of paper with the following written upon it:

As a Pennsylvania ferry boat was approaching her slip on the Jersey City side yesterday about 3 p. m., a young man who had been noticed to act strangely climbed up on the railing at the stern and plunged into the water. The boat was stopped, but no trace of the man could be seen for some time. Then he appeared on the surface at a considerable distance from the boat, having been carried down by the tide, but before assistance could reach him be sunk again. As he jumped into the water a letter fell from his pocket and floated to the Morriest, dock, where it was recovered. It was written in German and was a loving letter from an aged mother in Eschwege, Hanover, to her son in this country. It was dated January 25, but had no signature. had no signature.

England.

A reporter found John Smith in a small single room on the fifth floor front. He is a short, thick-set man, with a round face, high forehead, gray, close-cut side whiskers, and a queer mustache that runs up on the hig on each side, but is shaved away in the middle. The reporter presented the card and explained his mission. Mr. Smith held the card up in full view and inquired in a half tremulaus, undecided tone:
"You have seen that name before?"

The reporter admitted that he had seen both names several time.

The reporter admitted that he has seen several times.

"Then my papers have reached this country. Mr. Glactone knews me. He has sent them over, I sim known at Washington. I shall so there to-morrow, My mission is to do the will of the Almighty among the people of the earth and to remove all injustice. Come to-morrow and I will tell you all about it. I am sleepy now."

When the reporter called yesterday afternoon, Mr.

When the reporter called yesterday afternoon, Mr. mith said be had gone up to see Barnum's show in the forming and had been greatly disappointed that it was morning and had been greatly designed the following most open.

He said he was born in Ireland, had lived in England thirty-four years and owned White Horse Ford, which was a farm of farty acros. He went on in a rambing way to fell about how his mother had known before he was born that she was going to be blessed beyond all women; how at rafant school he had mastered the studies in an incredibly short time; how he had been saved from terrible disasters; and how finally four years ago it had been revealed to him that Christ was born in his body. Since then he has been meking daly communications since then he has been misking daily communications from the Abulghty to the world. England, by not obeying his injunctions, is now suffering. His mission, he says, is to rad the world of injustice. He came over in the Wyoning on Tungsday, dresses like an English source, and wears a diamond ring. He intends to go to Washington to-morrow to see if Gladatone has sent over his capters.

HOW TO GUARD THE LUNGS.

The first of the series of free health talks for The first of the series of free health talks for young men was given last evening in Association Hall by Dr. W. C. Jarvis, on "The Diseases of the Throat and Laugs—now guarded against." "The most intimate connection," he said, "exists between the nostril and the laugs. The nostril is to the laugs as the watch-key to the mainspring. If the key is out of order, the watch applied yans down. The great danger is the prevalent habit of breathing through the mouth. In the nostril the turbimated tissues filter the air and the small hairs keep out insects and noxious gases, while the mouth has no such guard. Mouth-breathing leads to sore throat, broughting pieces and preumonia."

He discouraged smoking, saying: "Tobacco leads naturally to sleebid. The poisonous coestituents are nearly the same in each. Alcohol will dissolve infeatine, and so a German oblysician recommends that each snoker be furnished with a bottle of heer or whiskey, so that the liquor will dispose of the poison."

will dispose of the poison."

The convention of Irish societies met last night in Central Hall, in East Forty-seventhst., to complete arrangements for the St. Patrick's Day parade. The 69th Regiment accepted the invitation to act as escort. Upon the singestion of the Polec Department, the route of the procession was changed. It will be us follows: The line will form at Union Square, the right resting on Fourteenth-st. The procession will move at the firing of a gun precisely at 1 o'clock, down the Rowery to Canal-st., to Broadway, to Fourteenth-st., around the Washington monument and back to Broadway, to Seventeenth-st., to Fourth-ave., to Eighteenth-st., to Seventh-ave., to Fourth-ave., to Fifth-ave., to Madison Square, where it will be dismissed.

BOUGHT AT AUCTION. The property of the Open Board of Stock Brokers Building Company, at No. 33 New-at. and No. 42 Broad-st., was sold at another sesterday by order of the receiver to William L. Butler, for $119,500. The building has a front of about thirty-two feet in New and twenty-one feet in Broad-st.

EMERSON AND WHIPPLE.

EMEESON AND WHIPPLE.

From The Boston Home Journal.

In speaking of this friendship Mr. Underwood told me a very droll little incident connected with the two, which shows Mr. Whipple's keen sense of humor and Emerson's lack of it.

The philosopher and the essayist were driving together along the Concerd road engaged in submated conversation; or rather Mr. Emerson was talking and Mr. Whipple was betening, or offering suggestion now and then by a word of question or differentiation. Mr. Emerson was much more interested in talking than driving, and not at any time a very skilful "whip," he did not distinguish himself on this occasion except by his absent-induced cardessness. The horse took the neural advantage of this, and longest along with lazy independence, little heedfal of the sudden lightening of the relus and the sudden the waste upon his back, when the driver now and then awoke to the fact that they were not proceeding as they should. All this was rather laborious business, but it did not prove nucle check to Emerson's conversation—not so much indeed as his unskilful attempts to snoke, for in this convivial accomplishment the sage was as little proficient as in kandling the relus. But to quote exactly from Mr. Underwood's words:

"Fo they drove on over the level way under the full moon. Exercise." Stakesparant ston' was drawn and the from Mr. Underwood's words:

"So they drove on over the level way under the full moon. Emerson's Shakespeare 'stop' was drawn, and the music was continuous—with the Interruptions—in the deep and manly base which we so well remember. For example, 'sometimes a word—a single word—revealed the presence of genius'; (as flap of the rems on the lazy horse) 'as if the electric power of the soni' (a rather hard puff at the clear) 'had set the word on fire and made it blaze. Now when he ways contemplating the same phenoment we see when he says, contemplating the same phenomena we see 'How aweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!'

last year, has returned to New-York for a short time in the interests of the Liberian College. He was formally received last evening by members of his concerned and the flethel. A week from to-morrow he will address them, giving an account of his experience in Liberia.

COLORADO ANXIOUS ABOUT SILVER.

From The Denser Tribune (Rep.)

To secure a President who is sound on silver, Colorado can well afford to sacrifice her ideal and preference, if she has any. To secure such a man we must send a delegation of statesmen, and not mere political workers, who will, like dummies, execute the behests of some leader. An able delegation may do us more good in one day than three Congressmen can do in four years. By all means, then, ict us sink local factions out of sight in the selection of delegates and choose six men of National reputation—men who will have sufficient force to assert the interests of the State in the great convention.

THE LEADING PAPER. 3 CENTS A COPY, AND WORTH IT.

THE TRIBUNE'S news is complete, and besides the staple reports of each day's events, it secures reports of all special matters of direct interest to its readers. Its columns are kept scrupulously clean and wholesome. The Tribune is heartily Republican, warmly sympathizes with every practical effort to restrict the traffic in intoxicating liquors, is the organ of no person or faction, is under no control save that of its Editor, and knows no obligation save that to the public. It believes in fair play North and South; common sense in industrial matters; and good wages, for good work; and it maintains that the best guaranis indispensable to those who wish a paper overflowing with the best of the gossip and local news of the metropolis, a fine variety of dispatches and news letters from American correspondents in Europe, and resumes by telegraph of the latest news in every part of the United States, literary reviews, and other
